

BPL Mobile as a fresh new brand. The new logo—Loop Mobile—has been designed keeping in mind youthful vitality, excitement and freshness that the company stands for.

Loop Mobile comes with a new network. The company has also announced the completion of its network expansion and doubled its capacity by deploying the latest NGIP (next-generation Internet protocol) and EDGE (enhanced data rates for GSM evolution) technologies.

IBM may acquire Sun Microsystems

IBM is reportedly in talks to acquire struggling Sun Microsystems for at least $6.5 billion. This acquisition will help IBM to counter its market rivals HP and Cisco Systems.

Sun, which had reorganised into three business units and laid off more than 6000 employees after reporting a nearly $500-million loss, has been struggling to find its place in the marketplace as the demand for its high-end servers and storage devices decline.

American Tower to buy India's XCEL Telecom

The Mauritius subsidiary of USA-based American Tower Corporation (ATC) has agreed to buy India-based XCEL Telecom, which owns and operates approximately 1700 wireless communications tower sites, for an undisclosed sum.

When combined with ATC's existing operations in India, the acquisition will create an independent tower company with a combined portfolio of approximately 2000 tower sites in 15 telecom circles, a team of 240 employees, and relationships with all of the leading wireless operators in India through master service agreements.
