

camera and home theatre. Samsung expects HD and new tech products to account for 50 per cent of its revenues in the audio-visual segment in 2009 compared to some 30 per cent in 2008.

LG introduces low-end handsets

To attract the low-end consumer base, LG Electronics has introduced two new handsets—GB110 and GB106. The GB106 phone, the cheaper of the two, sports an FM radio, colour screen and five-way D-pad. The slightly higher-end GB110 comes with addition of a microSD card slot that supports up to 2 GB of memory. It also has a built-in VGA camera.

LG GB106 handset

Also, to fight the slowdown in consumer demand, LG Electronics will focus on rural markets. It plans to roll out several new models in low-end segments like direct cool refrigerators, twin-tub washing machines, solo microwave ovens and CRT TVs in the first half of 2009. This is in sharp contrast to LG's erstwhile strategy to focus on premium products in the Indian market for the past couple of years.

India, UK undertake joint digital research

Scientists and engineers from India and the UK are going to collaborate to bring online education, healthcare and early warning weather/natural disaster systems to remote areas in both the countries. The £9.2-million 'Next Generation Networks' project has been set up to explore how exist-
