ViewSonic all set for all-in-one PC foray

ViewSonic Corporation, a global provider of visual display products, is planning a foray into the all-in-one PC market in India. Under its channel promotion programme for India, ViewSonic recently organised road shows in key cities of India demonstrating its technology in the all-in-one PC segment to its key partners across Delhi, Mumbai, Bengaluru, Chennai and Hyderabad. With an overwhelming response from the channel fraternity, ViewSonic says it is now all set to roll out this product line for India by July this year.

Honeywell opens new engineering centre

Honeywell chairman and CEO Dave Cote recently inaugurated a new $50-million research, development and engineering facility in Bangalore. It is Honeywell's second R&D centre in the city. The new facility will accommodate 3000 people and features laboratory facilities, simulators and a training centre.

"India is an integral part of Honeywell's global growth strategy," said Cote. "We are committed to India as a manufacturing location, export hub and most importantly as a centre of engineering and R&D excellence. Our presence here has grown from 1000 employees in 2002 to more than 10,000 today. Honeywell has five manufacturing facilities and more than 20 other locations across the country with employees in 50 cities. We look forward to continuing our growth in India and building our capabilities here."

Training on IPC specifications and standards
