

includes Canon's plans and strategies to prepare for the post-recession high-growth phase.

The products launched include six digital compact cameras, three digital video camcorders, one digital SLR, one compact photo printer and three professional lenses.

Canon also launched an exclusive programme called 'Canon League' to connect, develop and build a strong distribution channel. It is a focused initiative that classifies partners as platinum, gold, silver or bronze on the basis of digital cameras sold by them in the first half this year.

Samsung India aims higher

Samsung Electronics bets to capture the India telecom market in less than two years time. Plans are afoot to double up the company's market share in the GSM and CDMA handset segments by more than five per cent annually. This will ensure the highest shipment of handsets in the country.

"Our plan is to consolidate market share in both GSM and CDMA handset segments in India till 2010, following which we will strongly vie to become the largest handset vendor," said Sunil Dutt, country head, telecom division, Samsung India Electronics.

Samsung India has 23 per cent share coming from the CDMA phones and some 14-16 per cent in the GSM segment. It is the second-largest player in both segments in terms of market share, with Nokia in the lead.
