DELL INDIA PVT LTD

Rs 45,000 mn (2008-09)

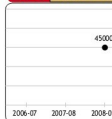

Dell India Pvt Ltd, the Indian arm of Texas-based computer maker Dell Inc, was incorporated in 1996. The company recently started restructuring its business operations in India around four segments—consumer, large enterprise, public sector and small- and medium-business. With Indian operations playing a significant role in both research and global operations, Dell continues to scout for fresh talent from engineering colleges. Dell has struck a deal to purchase technology services provider Perot Systems for $3.9 billion. The acquisition, expected to close between November and January, greatly expands Dell's reach into the IT services and support market, particularly in government and healthcare sectors.

TECH MAHINDRA LTD

Rs 44,269 mn (2008-09)

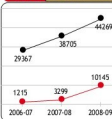

Tech Mahindra was incorporated as a joint venture between Mahindra & Mahindra and BT plc in 1986, under the name Mahindra-British Telecom. Later, the name was changed to Tech Mahindra. The company serves telecom service providers, equipment manufacturers, software vendors and systems integrators. In a landmark development, Tech Mahindra acquired a majority stake in the scam-tainted Satyam Computer Services (since rebranded Mahindra Satyam), in April this year. Satyam's acquisition marked the entry of Tech Mahindra, which had so far focussed on the telecom vertical, into other verticals such as financial services, healthcare, manufacturing, etc.
