

GizMo ByTes

Intex Cloud X1+ Launched at Sub ₹ 3000 in India

Mobile phone maker Intex has unveiled its new entry-level Android smartphone, dubbed as the Cloud X1+. It comes with an 8.8cm (3.5-inch) touchscreen display, as the device is targeted towards the first-time smartphone users. The dual-SIM smartphone will soon be available across all the retail stores in India. It is priced very reasonably at ₹ 2990.

Samsung to Launch New Website for Product Design

Samsung had teased a video on the company's official YouTube channel, dubbed as Samsung Tomorrow. The intended trailer marked for the company's newest upcoming launch in the beginning of April. And, this time it is not a smartphone or a tablet that is coming up. The new launch is a website by Samsung that is completely ordained with product design.

Huawei Stalls Dual OS Smartphone Idea

In recent news, Huawei was said to be working on a smartphone that would support both Android and Windows Phone OS. The dual-boot smartphone concept is reportedly stalled by the company, as of now. Media reports claim that the electronics company has said it will not release a dual-OS smartphone any time soon. Another smartphone maker Asus was also expected to launch a similar concept device, dubbed as Transformer Book Duo TD300. The company has also stalled its plans.

iPhone to Get a Brainy Battery Usage System

Battery drain is always an issue with Apple's devices, but it appears that the company is all set to address the issue. It is reportedly working on a way to ascend the battery backup on iPhones. The new system will collect data from its apps, which the users run such as motions (gyro), light sensors, GPS, wireless network availability, user's environment and phone's usage including screen on/off, power adaptor attach/detach. It will interpret the data and make forth the best option for performance and efficiency.

Lenovo Unleashes Premium Multi-Media Notebook

Features Windows 8.1 operating system

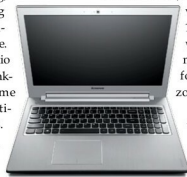

Lenovo has launched the New IdeaPad Z510—a multi-media notebook that offers a superior combination of premium features and a stylish design. The laptop is equipped with a powerful processor, graphics performance along with an integrated DVD drive and superior audio quality, making it ideal for everyday multimedia experience.

This new notebook from Lenovo weighs only 2.2kg, offering an amazing combination of features and performance. It packs amazing audio quality with JBL speakers and Dolby Home Theatre, with multiple storage options. Optimised to be a complete portable entertainment hub, the device is powered with fourth-generation Intel core processor; latest graphics card with up to six hours of battery life and a great HD LED display with antiglare. The white backlit keyboard not only makes typing easy but also adds a lot of class to the overall design of the notebook.

Some important features include Windows 8.1 operating system, hybrid 1TB SHDD storage and NVIDIA graphics card with integrated 8GB NAND Flash, sharper and crisper visuals with slim 15.6 HD LED display with anti-glare for multi-touch touchpad for easy scroll and zoom functions.

Another important feature is 1M HD camera to stay connected with friends and family through video chats.

Price: ₹ 52,954

ZTE9 Releases The World's Fastest Home Entertainment Console

Powered by NVIDIA's Tegra4 processor

ZTE9 Limited has released FunBox, the world's fastest home entertainment console, bringing consumers and families a unique high-performance all-in-one gaming, video-chatting and online video experience.

The FunBox is powered by NVIDIA's Tegra4 processor, based on the new A15 architecture, and the superior graphics performance is delivered by a 72-core GeForce graphics processor with 2GB DDR3L memory and 8GB Flash memory. The specifications make the FunBox the highest performance home entertainment console currently available globally.

The FunBox is the first home entertainment console to support video-chatting, allowing users to conduct video calls on their smart televisions for the first time. With a dual-antenna, dual-frequency Wi-Fi design and a Bluetooth controller, FunBox offers superior connectivity and robust network performance. In the future, users will be able to buy personalised versions of the FunBox with customised casings.

Price: ₹ 6685