will be installed. He also said that these plants are functional and monitored based on performance.

The established plants will produce 502,240 units of electricity per year at an average rate of 4kWh/kWp/day. Thus, the cost of installation will be recovered in less than ten years.

The solar plants came into action in September-October 2014 and had successfully generated 81,700 units of electricity till November 28, 2014, which was fed into IITK grid.

Panasonic aims to make it large in India with Make in India campaign

Indian economy is banking a lot on the recently-launched Make in India campaign, which is aimed at boosting investment and manufacturing opportunities in the country.

Panasonic has shifted its focus to solar panels, car navigation systems and batteries, reducing their dependence on consumer electronics like smartphones and plasma TVs. Panasonic president Kazuhiro Tsuga expressed his optimism in the campaign as investment future looks great for the country.

He helped the company come out from a troubled time in a business-oriented way and showed strong confidence in automotive, eco-solutions and surveillance businesses, which target to increase the company revenues to US$ 84 billion by 2018-19.

Tsuga shed light on his plans, keeping in line with Make in India campaign, and proposed manufacturing investments in the country, including their factory at Haryana.

Government bags electronics manufacturing proposals

The government has bagged the proposal for electronics manufacturing from companies like Panasonic, Continental, Bosch, Samsung, Motherson Sumi, Sonic and Tata Power worth ₹ 150,00 million.

After the launch of Digital India campaign, Indian government has re-
