and the growing need of customers for operating system (OS) based devices are some of the major factors contributing towards the growth of this market.

According to 6Wresearch, India tablet PC market shipments volume reached 3.44 million units for the year ending June 2014. Samsung continued its dominance in the India tablet PC market, followed by Micromax and Apple. Samsung and Micromax captured around 45 per cent of the market share.

In terms of screen size, 17.8cm (7-inch) tablet PC registered more than 74 per cent market share.

In the OS segment, Android bagged more than 87 per cent market share, followed by 12 per cent of IOS based tablet PC. Whereas, Windows OS exhibited a substantial triple-digit growth in 2014 as compared to 2013.

On the other hand, wide acceptance of phablets among the Indian consumers acted as a hurdle for the projected growth of India tablet PC market. Also, delay in BIS (Bureau of Indian Standards) certifications deferred the entry of foreign players, halting the growth of this market.

Indian players, especially across the IT sector, are implementing the 'bring your own device policy.' Government initiatives, multiple distribution points and emergence of new players are likely to drive the growth of the local and international vendors in the India tablet PC market.

Intex to manufacture smartphones, tablets in India

Intex Technologies, which already manufactures feature phones in India, is now planning to develop tablets and smartphones in the country. At present, every Intex smartphone is sourced from China and labelled with its own brand.

These Chinese-developed smartphones are usually affordably-priced. The company is trying to develop equally low-priced devices by being completely dependent on the manufacturing plants in India.

According to marketing director, Keshav Bansal, the first Intex smartphone developed in the country would be ready for market latest by December 2014; Intex has already started production at its manufacturing plants in Baddi and Jammu.
