

Smartphone With Light Alert

When your HTC Rhyme is in your handbag, its 'charm' cube dangling out flashes for alerts

HTC Corporation has unveiled a smartphone called HTC Rhyme that features a 9.4cm (3.7-inch), WVGA LCD screen and high-quality stereo sound. The smartphone also has a 5-megapixel camera with features like auto focus, power LED flash, instant shutter, face detection and action burst scene (which automatically takes five consecutive shots of a scene).

A light-emitting cube called Charm attaches to the phone through a cord that can dangle from the bag discretely to alert the user of incoming calls or messages when the phone is deep in her bag. It can also help to quickly pull the phone out of the bag.

Tablet Tailored To Your Hand

Uniquely designed Sony tablets run on the latest Android 3.2 OS

Sony has forayed into the Android Tablet category in India with the launch of Tablet S and Tablet P. These tablets have a 'throw' feature to wirelessly sync with PC, home-theatre or TV, and customised applications for the Indian customers.

The tablets are PlayStation-certified. Tablet S has a wedge shape—similar to a magazine that's been folded over. On the other hand, Tablet P has a dual-screen design. So you can watch video on one screen while using the other to control it, or check e-mail while using the other screen as a keyboard. A built-in infrared sensor allows Tablet S to function as a remote control for devices like TV and stereo system.
