

Android 4.0 Tablet Below Rs 5000

Videocon's VT71 has a 17.8cm (7-inch) capacitive touchscreen with 800x480 resolution

Adding one more model to its tablet range, Videocon Mobile Phones has come up with VT71 tablet that runs Android 4.0 (Ice-Cream Sandwich) operating system and is powered by a 1.2GHz processor. The tablet has a 17.8cm capacitive touch screen with 800x480 resolution and a powerful 3200mAh battery.

The VT71 also includes 4GB ROM, 512MB RAM (expandable up to 32 GB) and a front VGA camera. It comes with preloaded apps like Saavn, NexGtv, Facebook and Nimbuzz. Other features include a 3.5mm audio jack, an HDMI out port with free HDMI and OTG cable, Wi-Fi 802.11 b/g/n, micro USB support and 3G support via dongle.

Price: ₹ 4799

Battery-powered Portable Sound Bar

Portronics' Pure Sound Pro has an in-built media player that plays music through a USB drive or SD card

Portronics has launched a portable sound machine that weighs around 1 kg, which makes it suitable for use with laptops, desktops, tablets and mobile phones. The device, called Pure Sound Pro, has an in-built media player that plays music through a USB drive or SD card. It also has an auxiliary input that allows you to connect it with many audio-enabled devices. The built-in FM radio module automatically searches FM stations when you press its scan button.

The Pure Sound Pro can be operated using a remote control. It has a rechargeable, detachable lithium-ion battery, which allows approximately eight hours of playback when fully charged.

Price: ₹ 3499

GizMo
ByTes

Opera celebrates 300 million users

Norwegian company Opera recently hit the 300 million monthly user mark across all its browser products on phones, tablets, TVs and computers. The company will showcase its WebKit-based Android browser at the Mobile World Congress and will also be gradually making the WebKit shift to desktop browsers too.

Nimbuzz launches redesigned app for BlackBerry 10

Nimbuzz, the cross-messaging mobile platform, has launched its redesigned messaging app for the BlackBerry 10 platform. The app will integrate GTalk, Yahoo! and Facebook messenger in a BlackBerry app, enabling users to send messages, pictures and videos across to any mobile device. Nimbuzz aims to provide BlackBerry 10 devices, including the PlayBook, free access to its features.

iPhone 6 may not arrive in 2013

As usual with all Apple products, its forthcoming iPhone 6 is in news even before it has been officially announced. According to Jefferies analyst Peter Misek, the device will be launched before the middle of the next year. Misek explains that issues like display yield will postpone the launch of iPhone 6 to next year.

WhatsApp gets a new look

The new version of popular messaging app WhatsApp is said to bring the sleek looking user interface that conforms to the Holo guidelines phones running Android 4.0. Fonts now look better than before and over-the-top colour scheme is much more toned down with this update.