

L to R: J. Satyanarayana, secretary, DoIT; Kapil Sibal, minister for Communications & IT, government of India, Ajai Chowdhry, founder, HCL, at the conference on the National Electronics Policy, during EFY Expo 2013

ELECTRONICS FOR YOU EXPO 2013

BRINGS BIGGER AND BETTER BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

If you believed that the global economic slowdown has hampered the growth of the electronics industry, then the recently concluded Electronics For You Expo 2013 (EFY Expo) must have proved you wrong. An enthusiastic electronics industry converged at this mega event, held at Pragati Maidan, New Delhi, from February 21-23, 2013.

Started in 2011, EFY Expo entered its third year, with an even better platform for business and networking. With over 200 exhibitors showcasing their products under one roof, this electronics exposition turned out to be an appropriate platform for innovators, design engineers, manufacturers and traders of electronic systems and components. With the sole aim of accelerating the growth of the electronics industry in India, the Expo focused not only on components and manufacturing equipment but the entire ecosystem.

The Expo had bustling activities on all the three days and also led to some serious long-term business decisions being actualised by manufacturers and their buyers. Packed conferences and seminars running in parallel to the Expo provided an informative insight into the Indian electronics industry. These proved beneficial for senior-level decision makers within the industry and for design engineers.

With an impressive footfall of over 13,000 visitors the Expo saw many happy exhibitors and satisfied buyers. It offered business opportunities in various sectors of the electronics industry including components, test and measurement equipment, training and educational solutions, PCB manufacturing, electronics manufacturing services (EMS) and electronics design.

This successful event is expected to come back in a much bigger and better avatar next year from January 29 to 31, 2014, again at Pragati Maidan, New Delhi.

13,121
 Unique Visitors

10,455 sq m (gross)
 Total Area

L to R: Kapil Sibal, minister for Communications & IT, government of India and J. Satyanarayana, secretary, DoIT, at EFY Expo 2013

Visitors from different countries at the booth of Kyoritsu Electric India during EFY Expo 2013