

LG 65LM6200 LED

LG is known for its gigantic 213cm (84-inch) LED TV but, apart from that, the Korean electronics brand offers other big sizes also. The 65LM6200 LED TV is not anywhere near the ₹ 1,600,000 price mark, but this 165cm (65-inch) TV is one of those heavyweights in slim form factor that would dazzle anybody with its picture quality and experience. It comes with a host of features including innovative multimedia, connectivity and 3D imaging.

LG has priced the LED TV at ₹ 323,399

Samsung 55ES8000 3D Full HD LED

Samsung leads not only in the smartphone race but in the television race as well. And while the company is busy charting up its plans for 2013, it currently offers a wide product portfolio of LED TVs that are available across different price brackets as well as size brackets. Samsung 55ES8000 3D TV has a 140cm (55-inch) display and comes with smart interaction voice, face recognition and motion control as well as smart content features like family story sharing and AllShare play access to devices. The TV comes with a smart evolution technology that offers hardware and software updates. It is powered by a dual-core processor that allows easy multitasking like Web browsing and Samsung apps access among others. The TV wirelessly connects to compatible devices through DLNA technology, which allows streaming with other devices.

Micromax T770K55F 3D LED

Micromax made its surprising entry into the television segment last year. The LEDT770K55F, a 140cm (55-inch) LED TV launched by the company, sports a wide screen that offers full HD TV experience. Micromax has designed its own Audio Visual Entertainment Architecture (AVEA) technology that, according to the company, offers life-like images and home speaker like sound experience. The TV also comes loaded with Smart TV feature that lets you stream YouTube videos and connect with friends on social networking sites. It offers Full HD 1080p resolution, and comes with four HDMI ports and two USB ports.
