

Domestically-made products can double exports in India: IEEMA

Indian Electrical and Electronics Manufacturers Association (IEEMA) has said that exports can double if we increase focus on domestically-made products in India. Sanjeev Sardana, chairman of the apex body said, "The prospects of exports of 'made-in-India' look good for domestic players and can help double exports in three years."

The electrical equipment industry in the country, which stands at ₹ 1300 billion worth, has witnessed a two per cent growth after four consecutive quarters of negative growth, in the first quarter of FY14. Sardana added that this has happened majorly because of the increase in exports of electrical equipment.
