

Here comes an open source alternative for Google docs

If you are on the lookout for a documenting suite software like Google Docs, Microsoft Office and LibreOffice, then you're in luck as here comes OX Document. The OX Document comes from the stable of Open Xchange, which is known for setting up a Microsoft Exchange alternative.

According to the blog, OX Document is still in its initial development phase and the company has released a demo-version of OX Text, its word processor product.

The company has also said that a usable version of OX Text will also be released soon, which will be followed by the spreadsheet and presentation software later this year. OX Text will also be released in early April under the GNU General Public License 2 and Creative Commons.

A global SIM card for cheaper calls and Internet connectivity

If you are a frequent traveler, this news will surely excite you. Every time you travel abroad, you either end up with a bloated mobile bill or buy special calling cards for the country you are travelling to. Well, what if you were told that you can buy one card and it will work across the globe, without being too heavy on your pocket? This is true!

Sauber Bhatia and Yogesh Patel

Jaxtr Inc., a company founded by Hotmail co-founder Sauber Bhatia and Yogesh Patel, has announced a global prepaid SIM card called Jaxtr Sim. The creators claim that the USP of the card is that it allows you to make international calls at much cheaper rates than competitors.

Not only calling, it also offers Internet connectivity, forwarding to voicemail free of cost, and voicemail to email feature at no additional cost. It will also update important local contacts based on your location.

Samsung's smartwatch Galaxy Altius

Imagine a watch that will let you make not only voice calls but also video calls. Sounds unrealistic? Not any more. Lee Young Hee, Samsung's VP of Mobile, has said that the com-
