Earbud from Zoook

World's smallest Bluetooth earbuds

From incredible acoustic detail and clarity to breathtaking audio experience, BULLET earbud is the new standard for true wireless stereo-like audio. BULLET capsule houses and charges the earbud when not in use. Simply place the earbud in the capsule to charge automatically, so it is ready to go when you are. The robust, minimal capsule is machined from a single block of aluminium and is designed to fit as easily into your lifestyle as your pocket.

The earbud is built with dedicated amps-driving high-precision-balanced armature speakers. The result is an incredibly detailed sound, excellent mid and high tones with a tight bass response, all delivered with minimal distortion. This combined with the most advanced wireless and battery technologies available and a noise isolating design makes BULLET unique in wireless audio.

Tata Sky makes Everywhere TV free for all

Tata Sky has decided to make its service Everywhere TV accessible for free to all its subscribers. In 2013, the DTH operator had announced this service on Tata Sky mobile app—a feature that lets users stream 80+ live channels. They charged customers with ₹ 60 per month fee to access the service. Tata Sky mobile app is available on several platforms including Android, iOS, Windows and Mac OS X. With Everywhere TV, users could not only watch live TV channels, but also have access to Videos on Demand and catch up TV videos.
