

EFY Awards nomination process and finalisation process

industrial consumption

- Consumer electronics: Consisting of products related to consumer usage
- Special jury awards: Aimed at identifying and recognising not only the distinguished and esteemed personalities of the industry but also business entities that have brought about a significant improvement in the Indian electronics industry. In this respect, the 'Green Organisation of the Year' award has been included to salute the environment-friendly endeavours related to electronics ecosystem.

Fair assessment

The procedure for nominations and finalising these awards is quite simple. As the name suggests, these awards are based purely on the nominations invited from the readers of Electronics For You magazine, recorded and analysed by IMRB, the leading market research agency.

Explaining the procedure to the audience, Subrato Sarkar of IMRB said, "The selection procedure is totally transparent and based on readers' perception towards a particular brand. The nominees and winners of EFY Readers' Choice Awards are selected on the basis of the rankings given by the readers of EFY. The rankings are put together to get the top five nominations and then the winner amongst them is calculated on the basis of the most popular brand voted. The respondents vary across segments, mainly from the electronics industry, professionals and even associations from different parts of the country. In case of a tie between two brands for the same award, the case is referred to the jury, and the winner is selected on the basis of their final vote."

Eminent jury

The jury members suggest individuals or organisations for the awards, and then a winner is selected from amongst them through a discussion. The jury for the awards comprised Dr Debashish Dutta, senior director, DIT; Dr R.C. Chopra, ex-senior director, DIT and now senior advisor to CII; P. Venkatram, consultant-ICT (ex-Hinditron, Siemens, etc); N.K. Goyal, chairman emeritus, TEMA and now president of CMAI; Vinnie Mehta, executive director, MAIT; Rajoo Goel, secretary general, ELCINA; and wing commander Suresh Khanna, secretary general, CEAMA.

Winner's glory

The award categories comprised both electronics hardware as well as consumer electronics. While Sony was the clear winner in consumer electronics, Vishay took the lead in components categories winning two awards in the categories of resistors and diodes & transistors. APC led in the categories of inverter & UPS for both industrial and domestic.

The Sixth EFY Readers' Choice Awards received a positive response and the ceremony concluded on a happy note. While the winners basked in the glory of their success, a grand cultural show including tabla and qawwali by Shobhan Hajra captivated the members of the electronics fraternity. Moreover, the event offered a great networking platform. ●

The author is a correspondent at EFY

"It is a very proud moment to receive the EFY award in today's competitive market"

—Lalit Wadhwa, vice president, Eureka Forbes

"We are excited to win this award from a credible organisation like EFY. It is our constant endeavour to provide consumers with the best products"

—Shubhodip Pal, head consumer marketing, Hewlett Packard, PSG India