manufacture (ESDM), robotics, 3D printing, nanotechnology, medical devices, health technology and clean technology."

The chief minister referred to Karnataka's startup policy, which was framed to boost innovation and to create an ecosystem that fosters start-ups in information technology (IT), biotech, ESDM and other knowledge sectors. He stated that Keonics would be setting up the incubators and common instrumentation facilities in Bengaluru and in the IT parks of Shivamogga, Bagalkote and Kalaburgi.

The budget is also aimed at setting up centres of excellence and finishing schools in the IT, electronics and animation sectors along the lines of the biotechnology finishing schools in the state. The government has also put in place the Karnataka Semiconductor Venture Fund with one billion rupees corpus to offer venture capital to chip companies.

India's first mobile phone manufacturing cluster by August

India's first mobile phones manufacturing cluster—the Shri Venkateswara Mobile and Electronics Manufacturing Hub—is being set up at Tirupati and is likely to be operational by August this year. Located opposite the Tirupati airport, it is expected to generate over 10,000 jobs within its first year and produce at least two million handsets per month, according to Murali Retineni, Celkon's executive director.

The new cluster would also contribute five per cent of the all-India target of 1.5 million jobs by 2019, according to a release issued by the Indian Cellular Association. It will include the production units of Micromax, Karbonn, Lava and Celkon. Each of these firms will be making an investment of about 500 million rupees in the first phase.

The Indian companies are talking to the local components manufacturers to make them a part of the hub to
