

too many notifications as it tries to suggest apps for you to use among other things. That said, it does have a decent app ecosystem and features Netflix, Amazon Instant Video, Hulu, HBO Go/HBO Now, YouTube, Spotify and Vudu depending on region. While not as good as the previous two, this OS also offers split-screen view of watching TV while browsing, which now comes with Android Nougat.

LG webOS. LG TVs feature this OS, and offer almost the same apps like Netflix, Amazon and others. The user interface is jiggly and fast to the point that it may be dizzying to some. But that should not be a problem once you get used to it. It looks decent and is fast, but not as good as the previous three though.

Smart TVs to check out

Now that you know what to look out for, here is our recommended collection of smart TVs.

Most affordable smart TV: Noble Skido 32SM32NO1. This 81cm (32-inch) LED TV comes with Wi-Fi/LAN connectivity. It allows you to stream videos from YouTube and download shows from Netflix.
