

business process outsourcing (BPO), followed by 111,000 in automobile sector. Some 101,000 jobs were created in textiles sector including apparels, 88,000 in metals and 33,000 in leather sectors during the period under review.

Software revenue increases by 16.3 per cent

Indian enterprise software market has shown broad growth and recovery in 2010. The total software revenue increased by 16.3 per cent annually taking the growth to $2.5 billion, according to Gartner.

India's software revenue grew just 4.2 per cent to $2.1 billion in 2009. According to Asheesh Raina, principal research analyst at Gartner, major software vendors expanded their product portfolios, acquired companies where appropriate to their plans, and reached deeper into emerging markets including India in 2010.

"The year represents a return to solid footing as the India market expanded in terms of revenue and maturity," said Raina.

Indians don't prefer shopping online

According to a report by the Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI), except a few services such as online ticketing and hotel bookings, Indian consumers are not comfortable buying products or services online.

Further, e-tailing that includes the purchase of durable products like electronic items, home and kitchen appliances, and many others constitutes only eight per cent of the market. It has been found that the questions that come to customers' mind while shopping online are: What will the quality of the garment be? How will the delivery happen? Will the result be satisfactory? Is online payment safe? and so on.

Urban India suffers from low Internet literacy

A recent report from PriceWaterhouseCoopers (PwC) has revealed that India
