Gee Pee plans manufacturing unit

Low-cost cellphone maker Gee Pee Infotech plans to set up a handset manufacturing unit near Kolkata at an investment of Rs 10 billion.

"We are in advanced discussions with Spreadtrum, Long Cheer and MTK to ink technology-sharing pacts. They will help us design and assemble the cellphones at our proposed telecom park in West Bengal. We are yet to take a final call on whether the chipsets will be sourced from all three or just a single supplier," said Bijay Agarwal, managing director and founder of Kolkata-based Gee Pee Infotech.

Mirc Electronics ventures into LED lighting

Mirc Electronics, manufacturer of Onida brand of consumer durables, has forayed into the LED lighting space with Onida and Igo brands. While Onida targets the urban sector (metro and mini metro markets), Igo plans to improve rural penetration.

"The opportunity in lighting is immense, in urban as well as rural India, where LED lights can replace conventional sources," said Avnish Jauhari, business head, Mirc Electronics. Onida and Igo are looking at revenues worth Rs 500 million each in the first year of their operations in the LED space.
