

dia. The programme, which runs as a pilot for two months from February 11 to April 11, 2011 in Mumbai, Delhi and Chennai, will be available in other parts of India during the next several months.

Dell has designed this programme to encourage consumers to responsibly dispose of their non-working laptop batteries, thereby preventing e-waste from entering landfills. The company is also offering a discount of Rs 500 towards the purchase of a replacement Li-ion Dell laptop battery to those who return their non-working lithium-ion batteries from the Dell Inspiron, Studio, XPS and Vostro laptop ranges for recycling.

Renesas Electronics opens branch office

Renesas Electronics Singapore has opened its branch office in Bengaluru. Engaging India's emerging market is part of Renesas' overseas business expansion strategy and by strengthening the sales, marketing and technical support in India, the company expects to grow its India business by 20 per cent annually.

The new office in Bengaluru is staffed by 16 employees. The company plans to increase its manpower to 45 by FY 2015. Along with its authorised distributors, there will be over 80 engineers providing field and technical support for customers in India, by the same fiscal year.

"Providing the best semiconductor solutions based on our competitive microcontrollers through the new branch, Renesas aims to double its sales in the Indian market to $100 million by FY 2012," said Yasushi Akao, president,
