Indian chip design industry to touch $10.2 billion by 2012

The semiconductor design industry, which comprises VLSI design, embedded software development and board design, will grow 17.3 per cent year-on-year from $7.5 billion in 2010 to touch $10.2 billion by 2012, according to a report by the India Semiconductor Association (ISA).

VLSI chip

"India ranks among the top few countries in the world on the availability of relevant talent plus colleges and the ability for high-end design companies to scale up. If we are able to fix the issues of sector-specific skills and quality, India could become a world leader in this space," said ISA president Poornima Shenoy.

Consumer electronics sales, telecom/networking market and portable wireless products are driving the growth of the semiconductor design industry. Also, emergence of technologies like LED screens, 3G and WiMAX has translated into increased demand for semiconductor design.

India 3rd fastest in broadband growth

India's broadband growth is the third fastest in the world with the addition of over 2.5 million new connections last year. The country now ranks thir-
